PUBLIC RADIO

Content Conference

2 0 1 9

The Public Radio Program Directors Association represents more than 800 stations, networks, producers, and professionals dedicated to the art and science of public radio content.

PRPD leads the content conversation in public radio and supports its members in providing valued service to listeners. PRPD provides critical resources to program directors, producers, executives, and decision makers across the country.

More than 400 public radio professionals will gather for THE national meeting devoted solely to public radio content and programming issues – on air and through digital platforms.

Work directly with PRPD experts to customize your conference marketing experience. Present your business and service to more than 400 of the public radio system's most influential decision-makers and content specialists.
